

CONTRIBUTORS

Karen Beckman is Jaffe Professor of Cinema and Modern Media at the University of Pennsylvania. She is the author of Crash: Cinema and the Politics of Speed and Stasis (Duke University Press, 2010) and Vanishing Women: Magic, Film and Feminism (Duke University Press, 2003); coeditor with Jean Ma of Still Moving: Between Cinema and Photography (Duke University Press, 2008) and with Liliane Weissberg of On Writing with Photography (University of Minnesota Press, 2013); and editor of Animating Film Theory (Duke University Press, 2014).

Deirdre Boyle is Associate Professor in the School of Media Studies at The New School in New York and is the former director of their Graduate Certificate in Documentary Studies. She is the author of Subject to Change: Guerrilla Television Revisited, among other titles, and is currently writing a monograph on the films of Rithy Panh.

Aviva Briefel is Professor of English and Cinema Studies at Bowdoin College. She is the author of The Deceivers: Art Forgery and Identity in the Nineteenth Century (Cornell University Press, 2006), The Racial Hand in the Victorian Imagination (Cambridge University Press, 2015), and coeditor of Horror after 9/11: World of Fear, Cinema of Terror (University of Texas Press, 2011). She is currently at work on a book project titled “Impossible Ghosts: Material Culture at the Limits of Evidence.”

William Caroline lives in Paris where he teaches and translates. He is preparing his first novel.

Amelie Hastie is the author of Cupboards of Curiosity: Women, Recollection, Film History (Duke University Press, 2007) and The Bigamist (BFI Film Classics/Palgrave Macmillan, 2010). Her essays have appeared in Cabinet, Camera Obscura, Film History, Parallax, and Screen. She is Professor of English and Chair of Film and Media Studies at Amherst College.

Megan Ratner, an independent critic based in New York, has written for Film Comment, Cineaste, Frieze, and other publications.

Paul Julian Smith is Distinguished Professor in the Hispanic and Luso-Brazilian Languages and Literatures Program of the Graduate Center, CUNY. He is the author of seventeen books, most recently Mexican Screen Fiction: Between Cinema and Television (Polity, 2014) and Desire Unlimited: The Cinema of Pedro Almodóvar, third edition (Verso, 2014).

Paul Thomas is currently an Emeritus Professor of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley, where he has taught Political Theory and American Cultures.

Jiwei Xiao is Associate Professor of Chinese at Fairfield University. She has published articles on Chinese authors, such as Mo Yan, Shen Congwen, Eileen Chang, and Wang Anyi, in both English and Chinese-language journals. Her recent publications on film include two essays, “The Quest for Memory: Documentary and Fiction in Jia Zhangke’s Films” (Senses of Cinema, 2011) and “A Traveler’s Glance: Antonioni in China” (New Left Review, 2013).